Market commentary

Bolstered by easing Covid-19 restrictions in China, emerging market equity prices rebounded during the fourth quarter. The MSCI Emerging Markets Index ("Index") returned 6.66% in local currency terms during the period. The emerging Asia region was the strongest-performing region within the Index in local currency terms. Communication services, health care, and materials were the strongest-performing sectors within the Index. Utilities, energy, and consumer staples were the weakest-performing sectors in the fourth quarter.

The Causeway Emerging Markets Fund ("Fund"), on a net asset value basis, underperformed the Index during the quarter. We use both bottom-up "stock-specific" and top-down factor categories to seek to forecast alpha for the stocks in the Fund's investable universe. Our bottom-up technical and growth factors were negative indicators during the quarter. Our valuation and competitive strength factors were positive indicators. Of our top-down factors, macroeconomic, sector, and currency were negative indicators. Country was a positive indicator during the quarter.

On a gross return basis, Fund holdings in the emerging Asia region detracted from relative performance, due primarily to negative stock selection in China. In the emerging Europe, Middle East, and Africa ("EMEA") region, positioning in Saudi Arabia and South Africa detracted from relative performance. Positioning in emerging Latin America modestly detracted from performance during the period. From a sector perspective, the largest detractors from relative performance were information technology, consumer staples, and materials. The greatest contributors to relative performance were financials, communication service, and utilities. The largest stock-level detractors from relative performance included overweight positions in polysilicon manufacturer, Daqo New Energy (China), insurance company, PICC Property and Casualty Co., Ltd. (China), and bank, Banco do Brasil SA (Brazil). The greatest stock-level contributors to relative performance included overweight positions in online audio entertainment platform, Tencent Music Entertainment Group (China), airline, Turk Hava Yollari AO (Turkey), and digital finance platform company, 360 Digitech (China).

The Morningstar Analyst Rating™ is not a credit or risk rating. It is a subjective evaluation performed by Morningstar's manager research group, which consists of various Morningstar, Inc. subsidiaries ("Manager Research Group"). In the United States, that subsidiary is Morningstar Research Services LLC, which is registered with and governed by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. The Manager Research Group evaluates funds based on five key pillars, which are process, performance, people, parent, and price. They consider quantitative and qualitative factors in their research, and the weight of each pillar may vary. The Analyst Rating scale is Gold, Silver, Bronze, Neutral, and Negative. A Morningstar Analyst Rating of Gold, Silver, or Bronze reflects the Manager Research Group's conviction in a fund's prospects for outperformance. Analyst Ratings ultimately reflect the Manager Research Group's overall assessment, are overseen by an Analyst Rating Committee, and are continuously monitored and reevaluated at least every 14 months.

The Morningstar Analyst Rating (i) should not be used as the sole basis in evaluating a fund, (ii) involves unknown risks and uncertainties which may cause Analyst expectations not to occur or to differ significantly from what they expected, and (iii) should not be considered an offer or solicitation to buy or sell the fund.
