Market commentary

Buoyed by an increasingly dovish US Federal Reserve and optimism surrounding US-China trade negotiations, emerging markets equities posted positive returns in the first quarter of 2019. The MSCI Emerging Markets Index ("Index") returned 9.88% in local currency terms during the period. Led by China, emerging Asia was the top performing region group within the Index. The emerging Latin America and emerging Europe, Middle East, and Africa ("EMEA") regions also delivered positive returns during the quarter. Consumer discretionary, real estate, and information technology were the top performing sectors within the Index in local currency terms. Health care, utilities, and consumer staples were the weakest performers.

The Causeway Emerging Markets Fund ("Fund") underperformed the Index during the quarter. We use both bottom-up and top-down factor categories to seek to forecast alpha (return in excess of the index) for the stocks in the Fund's investable universe. Our value factor was the top performing bottom-up category during the quarter and earnings growth was modestly positive. Our price momentum factor category was a negative indicator during the period. Of our top-down factors, macroeconomic and currency were positive indicators during the quarter. The country and sector factors were negative during the period.

Over the quarter, Fund positioning in the emerging Asia region detracted from performance relative to the Index, primarily driven by negative stock selection in China and India. Positioning in the emerging Latin America region also detracted from relative performance. Stock selection in Russia and an underweight position in South Africa contributed to relative outperformance within the EMEA region. From a sector perspective, the largest detractors from relative performance were industrials, financials, and consumer discretionary. Positioning in the real estate, energy, and health care sectors contributed to relative performance. The largest stock-level detractors from relative performance included overweight positions in financial services firm, KB Financial Group, Inc. (South Korea), and wireless communications operator, SK Telecom Co., Ltd. (South Korea), as well as an underweight position in electronic & print media platform operator, Naspers Ltd. (South Africa). The greatest stock-level contributors to relative performance included overweight positions in oil exploration & production company, Lukoil (Russia), multinational food processing company, JBS SA (Brazil), and cement manufacturer, Anhui Conch Cement Co., Ltd. (China).

Mutual fund investing involves risk, including possible loss of principal. In addition to the normal risks associated with equity investing, international investing may involve risk of capital loss from unfavorable fluctuations in currency values, from differences in generally accepted accounting principles, or from economic or political instability in other nations. Emerging markets involve heightened risks related to the same factors, as well as increased volatility and lower trading volume. Current and future holdings are subject to risk. Diversification does not protect against market loss. There is no guarantee that securities mentioned will remain in or out of the Fund.

The Morningstar Analyst Rating™ is not a credit or risk rating. It is a subjective evaluation performed by Morningstar's manager research group, which consists of various Morningstar, Inc. subsidiaries ("Manager Research Group"). In the United States, that subsidiary is Morningstar Research Services LLC, which is registered with and governed by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. The Manager Research Group evaluates funds based on five key pillars, which are process, performance, people, parent, and price. The Manager Research Group uses this five pillar evaluation to determine how they believe funds are likely to perform relative to a benchmark, or in the case of exchange-traded funds and index mutual funds, a relevant peer group, over the long term on a risk-adjusted basis. They consider quantitative and qualitative factors in their research, and the weight of each pillar may vary. The Analyst Rating scale is Gold, Silver, Bronze, Neutral, and Negative. A Morningstar Analyst Rating of Gold, Silver, or Bronze reflects the Manager Research Group's conviction in a fund's prospects for outperformance. Analyst Ratings ultimately reflect the Manager Research Group's overall assessment, are overseen by an Analyst Rating Committee, and are continuously monitored and reevaluated at least every 14 months.
