Investment objective

Causeway International Small Cap Fund seeks long-term growth of capital.

The Fund invests primarily in common stocks of companies with smaller market capitalizations located in developed and emerging markets outside the U.S. The Fund normally invests at least 80% of its total assets in equity securities of companies with smaller market capitalizations. Smaller market capitalization companies are companies with market capitalizations that do not exceed the highest market capitalization of a company within the Fund's benchmark, the MSCI ACWI ex USA Small Cap Index, at the time of purchase.

Fund features

- Actively managed, tracking-error oriented, quantitative strategy
- Combines bottom-up and top-down factors in security selection
- Supports strict risk controls in stock selection process
- Provides diversification benefits to a developed markets portfolio

The performance data quoted herein represents past performance. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results. The investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth less than their original cost, and current performance may be lower than the performance quoted. For performance data current to the most recent month end, please call 1.866.947.7000.

Returns greater than one year are annualized. Total returns assume reinvestment of dividends and capital gains distributions at net asset value when paid. Investment performance reflects contractual fee waivers. In the absence of such fee waivers, total return would be reduced. Investor Class shares charge up to a 0.25% annual shareholder service fee.

The MSCI ACWI ex USA Small Cap Index is a free float-adjusted market capitalization weighted index, designed to measure the equity market performance of smaller capital stocks in developed and emerging markets, excluding the US market.

Market commentary

Developed equity markets appreciated in the third quarter following signs of continuing global growth, albeit less synchronized than in 2017, as the US has outpaced other developed markets. International smaller capitalization ("cap") equities, as measured by the MSCI ACWI ex USA Small Cap Index ("Index"), underperformed international large caps by over 2% in the third quarter. Within international smaller cap equities, emerging markets stocks underperformed developed markets stocks during the quarter, and have underperformed significantly in the year-to-date period, as the strength in the US dollar and global trade tensions have pressured emerging markets more than developed markets. From a sector perspective, the strongest performers during the quarter were energy, healthcare, and telecommunication services. Materials, information technology, and consumer discretionary were among the weakest performing sectors.

The Causeway International Small Cap Fund ("Fund") outperformed the Index during the quarter. To evaluate stocks in our investable universe, our multi-factor quantitative model employs four bottom-up factor categories: valuation, earnings growth, technical indicators, and quality; and employs two top-down factor categories: macroeconomic and country. Though we analyze many different stock selection factors in our alpha model, value factors currently receive the largest weight, on average. In the third quarter, value factors were the best performing group, mostly due to their strong July performance. However, they remain the weakest alpha factor group over the year-to-date period and over the past 12 months. Earnings growth factors generated positive returns in the third quarter, and remain one of the best performing factor groups over the year-to-date period and over the last 12 months. The price momentum factor category, as measured by our technical factors, posted negative performance during the quarter. However, momentum factors have generated the largest returns over the last 12 months. The quality factor group posted negative returns in the third quarter, and returns to these factors are only modestly positive over the year-to-date period. All bottom-up factor group returns are positive from the inception of the Fund to the end of September. Within our top-down factor groups, our country aggregate and macroeconomic factors posted positive returns in the third quarter as countries with strong bottom-up and macroeconomic metrics outperformed those exhibiting relatively weaker metrics. Fund holdings in the energy, materials, and consumer staples sectors contributed the most to relative outperformance. Holdings in the healthcare, industrials, and telecommunication services sectors offset a portion of the performance. Relative performance for the quarter can be mostly attributed to stock selection.

The largest contributor to performance was construction materials company, Huaxin Cement, Co., Ltd. (China). Additional top contributors included integrated oil refiner & producer, Esso Thailand Public Co. Ltd. (Thailand), liquid crystal display company, Coretronic Corp. (Taiwan), financial services company, FIBRA Macquarie México (Mexico), and fish farming company, Grieg Seafood ASA (Norway). The largest detractor from relative performance was latex glove manufacturer, Supermax Corp. Bhd. (Malaysia). Additional top detractors included consulting and information technology solutions provider, Mitsubishi Research Institute, Inc. (Japan), electronic parts manufacturer, Taiyo Yuden Co., Ltd. (Japan), mining company, Sandfire Resources NL (Australia), and China Shineway Pharmaceutical Group Ltd. (China).

Mutual fund investing involves risk, including possible loss of principal. In addition to the normal risks associated with equity investing, international investing may involve risk of capital loss from unfavorable fluctuations in currency values, from differences in generally accepted accounting principles, or from economic or political instability in other nations. Emerging markets involve heightened risks related to the same factors, as well as increased volatility and lower trading volume. Investments in smaller companies involve additional risks and typically exhibit higher volatility. Current and future holdings are subject to risk. Diversification does not protect against market loss. There is no guarantee that securities mentioned will remain in or out of the Fund.
